New Free Map Available Historical Markers of McLennan County

The Waco Convention & Visitors Bureau has released a new map called “Historical Markers of McLennan County.” This map includes six new historical markers from the Texas Historical Commission’s database. The map is free, and is available at the Waco Tourist Information Center, 106 Texas Ranger Trail, next to the Texas Ranger Museum. The map is suitable for framing. One side pictures the historical markers of McLennan County, and the other side enlarges the downtown Waco area and its markers.

The map was created with the assistance of the McLennan County Historical Commission. This group has done extensive research to help identify locations where a marker was lost or removed and to have the location properly identified.

There are over 16,000 Official Texas Historical Markers placed throughout the state and in all 254 counties. Texas has the highest number of historical markers of all 50 states. The map shows that downtown Waco has 92 historical markers, and the county as a whole has 120 markers, for a total of 212.

Pick up your copy of the map at the Tourist Information Center. They are open Monday through Saturday, 8am to 5pm. Make exploring Waco and McLennan County part of your Waco visit!
